

Corporate Food Donations

Have surplus stock? We have the solution.

Daily Bread Food Bank works with hundreds of food industry partners across Ontario and beyond to redistribute surplus food inventory to support food banks and meal programs across Toronto.

Food donations are protected under Ontario's Good Samaritan Laws, (Donation of Food Act, 1994), which protect those who donate and distribute food in good faith from liability risks.

Daily Bread accepts safe-to-consume inventory that is overstocked, mislabelled, damaged, nearing or past the best-before date. This includes:

- Fresh foods, including produce and dairy products with 7 day shelf-life remaining.
- Shelf-stable food up to 8 months after the best-before date.
- Frozen meals (frozen pizza, microwave meals etc.) up to 6 months after best before date.
- Frozen fresh food, such as meat, seafood and baked goods (must frozen on or before the best-before date.)
- Products with mislabeling or damaged packaging (internal packaging must be intact, must be safe for consumption).
- Household items, including cleaning and sanitary products, hygiene and wellness products, pet food, diapers and more.

We are equipped to support you, we have:

- A fully equipped cold supply chain.
- Free, flexible, and fast pickups with a fleet of 26' and 53' trucks (minimum 1 pallet).
- Loading bays and dock-to-dock service for donation drop offs.
- 170,000 ft² warehouse and 5,000+ ft² of cold/frozen storage.
- Food handling certified professionals and quality assurance supervisors.
- Ability to process and repack bulk donations and relabel private brand donations.
- Capacity to sort mixed product donations.
- Easy scheduling and communications with our team via phone or email.

We offer our donors:

- Official documentation indicating the weight and value of your donation.
- Impact reporting, CSR and brand recognition opportunities.
